DEDICATION

We, the class of 1963, dedicate this yearbook to one who for sixteen years has selflessly devoted himself to the education and development of McBurney students. He is a teacher in the truest sense of the word; a man who is always willing to give of his knowledge, time, and consideration to those he teaches; and his sense of humor and awareness of the student's problems make his classes congenial and education itself less overwhelming. For these reasons and for his sincere interest in each student as an individual we respectfully dedicate this issue of the Lamp and Laurel to

To the Seniors of 1963:

Not so long ago, I met most of you for the first time in my world history classes. Since then, we have all had good and bad experiences as we have grown to know and understand each other. Many changes took place in our lives as you matured into young manhood and I assumed the position of headmaster. Thus, in a manner of speaking, as you finish your last year at McBurney, I finish my first. We have consequently entered or are about to enter entirely new worlds.

What kind of new worlds must we anticipate? Mine is already proving an exciting and challenging one. Yours will be even more stimulating. For college life, approached with the proper attitude, can be the four most glorious years you may ever have. Only you can decide how glorious those years will be.

Rest assured that all my best wishes go with you on your new venture. Your class has helped immeasurably in making a fine school of McBurney. Needless to say, I will miss you very much.

On behalf of the student body the class of 1963 extends its best wishes to Mr. Ogle and Mr. LaBastille, who this year are leaving the faculty. Two teachers with whom almost all of us have come in contact, they have been most influential in our education and most helpful to us as students. It is with all sincerity that we wish them well.

THE LONGEST DAY

Broadway and 63rd and only 8:15 by the MONY sign—I could have slept another fifteen minutes. Up 63rd Street—the same old block, the same people—nothing new since they put up the Peugeot sign. A clutch of students under the canopy struggling with the doors—at Rhodes they revolve? Past the Love-Winkler-Gershen-Grunebaum welcoming committee and Berger posting the day's events, halfway through the spelling of "Inter-School Liaison" and looking confused. Now into the Commons, our home away from home. Bardax trying out a new vest; Neal Young explaining Manifest Destiny to a sophomore; and Lower Schoolers everywhere underfoot. A confusion of crammers cramming, jokes dying by the second, and the nostalgic reminiscing about last night's Steve Allen Show. There is a sudden surge as the Lower School masses to storm the stairs to the third floor, and Rubel is revealed tilting the ice-cream machine in hope of another bonanza.

8:30—The bell rings and there is a rush up the stairs as the Advanced English elite drift into the Commons for another stage of their three week excursion from Hell to Paradise with Dante. Breathless on the stairs and then into 406, where Mr. Weisler has begun a seminar on motorcycle safety and the metaphysical poets; sartorial elegance; the realities of Swift as yet untouched. Winkler reprimanded for talking in the back of the classroom. He says that he was explaining Anglo-Saxon rhyme schemes to Biderman. 9:15—the bell rings and Donne is undone.

9:35—The morning creeps along now. American History, and Mr. Scudder regards the ceiling while Martinetti delivers a dissertation of the benefits segregation would bring the Pueblo Cliff dwellers and how anyone who disagrees with him is a red. Is Martinetti a good guy or a bad guy? 9:50—The A.M. announcements arrive: there is an assembly for seniors taking Driver's Ed, and the afternoon sessions will run thirty minutes late; there will be a mandatory meeting of the Railroad Club; and a lunch has ben found behind the ditto machine. 10:15—Chemistry and no Mr. Paganelli. Odds on a pretty mother substitute for the day. Next door Mr. Hardenbergh is going 0-6 in a lab experiment and rumor has it that he and Mr. Paganelli will not win the Betty Crocker Award for Better Kitchens in Cramped Quarters. Meanwhile, in the back of the Chemistry lab, Joseloff and Bloomfield have teamed up to set a new breakage record.

10:45 and the New Math. Mr. Sanger wearing a white corduroy suit so the chalk won't show. 11:30—Office boy arrives with second A.M. announcement: assembly cancelled and PSAT's for sophomores scheduled to start at 12:30. Afternoon classes to run till four o'clock. Glee Club to Study Hall. Mandatory meeting of the Railroad Club moved back to 4:30. Mr. Sanger quells near riot by passing out graded calculus tests.

11:30—Gym. Despite much coughing and many claims of illness, the class suits up. Mr. Bria out and Mrs. MacCready covering. Class swims progressions while memorizing typing charts hanging from the balcony. 11:50—Mr. Bria arrives followed by three French poodles. Dogs jump through hoops. Class jumps through hoops. Steve Fenton helps Mrs. MacCready take down typing chart.

12:15 — Commons. Freshmen having lunch. Sophomores taking PSAT's. Carl proctoring. 12:20—Mr. Sicilian and thirty seniors leave for Welfare Island to pose for risque Coca Cola ad. 12:25—Mr. Leonard dismisses senior section and the three who were present wander listlessly into the Commons. 12:30—sound of drum and bugle corps. Juniors led by Mr. Lawrence march through Commons for a pre-College Bowl rally in lunch rooms E & F. Gershen, who has claimed the lunch found behind the ditto machine, begins to writhe on the floor of the Commons. Carl offers him "Tums for the Tummy." Pandemonium temporarily averted as Mr. Bowman raps on the window of his office. Students settle down.

1:45—Still the Commons. Seniors in 6th period privilege activities. Gottlieb and Aaron start a game of "dots." Amendola challenges Goldwater to chess. Young and Pounder are stapling Outlooks. Wolff is reading Outlook and laughing. Sherman, Heiferman, and Stark are writing a letter to the New York Mets asking for tryouts. 3:15—7th period. Mark Swartz's Advanced Biology Class. Today's problem: what would be the result of crossing a pure normal-winged, heterozygous, yellow-bodied, homozygous, red-eyed, curly-winged fruit fly with a vestigial-winged, heterozygous, normal-colored, white-eyed, pure, straight-bristled one? Morgenstern raises his hand to answer. 3:55—The class is given the reading for tomorrow's discussion: twenty-five pages on the roles of desoxybose, phosphates, adenine, cytosine, thymine, guanine, and uracil in the replication of the DNA and RNA molecules during interphase of mitosis.

Central Park West and 63rd. 4:15 on the MONY sign. The day is over and as I turn my weary eyes homeward I am glad that the only things standing between me and television are the subway rush hour crowds and the mob outside Jaro's.

"No, I think you've got it wrong. William Dobbin is the friend of George Osborne, who marries Amelia Sedley, whose brother is almost trapped into marrying Becky Sharp, who is a friend of Amelia. Later Becky marries Rawdon Crawley, who is in the same regiment with George Osborne, who in the meantime has tried to elope with Becky, whose affair with Lord Steyne eventually causes the death of Rawdon. FIELD DAY - 1962

McBurney's annual Field Day dawned with the promise of weather bright and warm. Students started arriving at Randall's Island as early as 7:30 A.M. and by ten o'clock almost everyone had arrived. Despite his air of bewilderment, few believed that getting lost between the bus stop and the stadium could explain Jeff Youdelman's entrance at noon.

Variety of dress was the most obvious change from the usual school day, with both students and faculty attired in their casual best. Mr. Ogle appeared around ten thirty with his pin-laden hat from abroad and only Gerald Feld wore a tie and jacket. The business of the day began with the Freshman-Sophomore Tug-of-War and pushball game, both taken by the sophomores. Track events consisted of fifty and hundred yard dashes, three-legged and sack races and the football and softball throws for distance. Special features of this field day were the grueling struggle between the seniors and juniors for the pushball title and the fatman's race between Jeff Gershen and Jerry Love, Gershen proving that soccer practice is not in vain. At 1:15 the faculty and the seniors engaged in a game of softball in which the faculty once again proved that it is better to be with Mr. Deme than against him. He was the umpire.

To assure that no one had been lost during the day, a second attendance was taken at 3:00 P.M. just before the start of the soccer and football games. The soccer team met Columbia Grammar in a game wherein the Highlanders were victorious 3-0. Croyden Hall fell to the footballers 27-22 thus making it a dual victory for the Green and White on Field Day.

On that unforgettable day last September, we hurried to school, wondering what our new class would be like. It was good to see the same pleasant personalities, dotted with a few new ones.

Although, sad to say, we had lost Messrs. Walsh, Harlow, Green, and Bitner, they were ably replaced by a new team, captained by our own Mr. Peterson. We welcomed scientific Mr. Scully, literary Mr. Coonradt, and mathematical Mr. Burget. Mr. Henckel is still teaching us French without tears and Mr. Bates continues to vividly portray American history and politics to us. Our teachers usually can predict the amount of work the majority of the class can do, but they occasionally forget that Lincoln freed the slaves!

DETENTIONS

We aren't perfect, sad to say,
For often trouble comes our way,
Who invented detentions?

"Detention!" cried Mr. Bates. "Shame!"
When classroom football was our game,
Who invented detention?

Oh, we broke one window badly,
And therefore were kept in sadly,
Not another detention!

But if we sometimes play the fool,
We also work hard for our school,
Thus avoiding detention!

The class has been quite socially minded, attending parties at Mr. Coonradt's house, the Lower School dances, and many of the basketball games. We have luckily been able to let off plenty of steam at the Debate Club run by dramatic Mr. Bates. A football club, also organized by Mr. Bates, played touch football weekly in the park, and was enjoyed by those who participated. The touch, however, was often tough, usually causing a tumble.

All in all, we've had a good year, with plenty of hard work and interesting activities. The "finals" are now over and we are looking forward to the new term.

FINALS

The tests are here,
Don't lose your head!
The marks are near,
We're filled with dread!
We shed a tear,
For days now dead,
But give a cheer,
New term's ahead!

Stewart K. Eastman

This year members of 8-2 participated in the many club and team activities of the Lower School. The Lower School basketball team opened the season with high hopes, thanks in part to the many impressive players from our class. Among these were Peter Aster, Gilbert Kline, John Booth, Chris Swenson, and Gary Siegal. Gary was one of the high scorers and is a leading contender for the Freshman team.

Mr. Bates, our Social Studies teacher, has been carrying on a highly successful Debate Club. The members debate questions important in the world today. Some of the leading debaters in our class are Bruce Koppel, Mark Shulman (who is running for President of the club), Mark Kerstein, Albert Murray, Philip Weinstock, and Jimmy Rosen.

Also the Glee Club, headed by Mr. Rock, has taken members of the class on tour to various parts of the city as part of its program of Christmas music presentation. In assemblies or at the Philharmonic, the voices of Kenneth Ogger and Chris Swenson, who have been contributing their time generously to the Glee Club, can be heard.

In Arts and Crafts with Mr. Rapoport, one can accomplish many things. Among those who are known to be working on projects are Alfred Amendola, Richard Abbot, Michael Campbell, Nick Eyle, and others. In Arts and Crafts the students make belts, pottery and various items of wood craft.

All in all, this year has been beneficial for all, academically, physically, morally, and socially. McBurney has contributed greatly to the students, and we hope the students have contributed as much to McBurney.

KNEELING—Walter Barnett, John Crisona, Donald Sussman, Julian Fifer, Raymond Stein.

On sunny September 17, 1962, the first day of the new school year, the class of 7-1 convened in room 308. When the students of the old sixth grade took their first step into the new room, they found many new faces in addition to the old ones. Julian Fifer, Keith Kaufman, and Jeff Smith all proved, however, that new students are as smart as old ones by proceeding to make the Honor Roll.

During the summer months, everyone coming into the seventh grade read four books: A Night to Remember, Johnny Tremain, The Romantic World of Richard Haliburton, and Captains Courageous. Later in the year the boys put on three of Thornton Wilder's plays in literature class. In English, with the aid of Mr. Perry, the class put out a newspaper edited by Seth Weiner and Julian Fifer.

This year 7-1 has had many representatives in the choir. These included Robert Alexander, Kent Bain, Jeff Bruck, John Crisona, Richard John, George Kanouse, Donald Sussman, and Seth Weiner.

The writers of this article feel that not only the academic work of the students should be publicized, but their personal interests as well. For this reason we have chosen hobbies to represent the interests of the class.

Robert Alexander has the athletic hobby of fishing. Walter Barnett's favorite hobby is aquariums. Kent Bain's hobby is much different from these two, however. His interest is in electric trains. Coin and stamp collecting, which seem to be popular with the class, are favorites with Julian Fifer, Jeff Bruck, and newcomer Donald Sussman. Model building and photography are Richard John's interests, and Jeff Smith enjoys photography with him. An unusual hobby, occupied by Alen Werthimer, is drawing and cartooning. A mid-semester newcomer, Michael Shaw, also enjoys coin collecting.

A CANDID VIEW OF 7-2

We are all still rather sleepy when we enter room 310 for math with Mr. Burget at 8:30 A.M. Math is really the perfect remedy for sleepiness. Most of us are awake by 8:40. This is partly due to the fact that Mr. Burget likes to give quizzes in addition to the regular classwork. At 9:15 the bell rings, the doors fly open, and there is a shoving contest between us and the next class trying to enter the room. We can charge up the steps for literature with Mr. Perry in room 410.

After the first ten minutes of excuses for not doing homework and the other usual delays, everything calms down. For the rest of the period we discuss and read our books. At 10 o'clock the bell rings and once again we are on the move, this time to 307 for Social Studies with Mr. Bates. In Social Studies we study geography. Usually we learn how to outline, and have discussions and debates. One day, for example, we had a debate on whether the farmer or the businessman is the main source of American progress. At the end of this period we go to our book-lockers to get our gym gear. In gym we can work off a lot of "steam." We either go swimming with

Mr. Scully or to gym with Mr. Sprau and Mr. Bria. After our showers, which are certainly needed, comes lunch. Many of us belong to the choir, and we rehearse at 12 o'clock. At 12:30 classes begin again with English. During this period Mr. Perry instructs us in grammar, composition, and vocabulary.

At 1:15 we are ready to go to study hall which is once again in Room 307 with Mr. Bates. In study hall we start our homework or do some special research.

After study hall we go to the fourth floor for our last period: science with Mr. Scully. In science we do a variety of things including dissecting, looking at films, and plain note-taking. We also have time to ask a lot of questions. One very funny question came up when we were studying filtration. A boy asked, "What would happen if you poured water through three handkerchiefs?" Mr. Scully answered, "The handkerchiefs would get wet." At 2:45 our day comes to an end and we are as tired as we were in the morning.

ACTIVITIES OF THE SIXTH GRADERS

The sixth graders left their previous schools to enter McBurney because of its fine scholastic standards, which they learned about from friends and former students.

The boys' interest in school clubs is still indefinite; however several of the boys have been made members of the choir, and extra-curricular activities outside of school clubs include juggling, judo lessons, cadet membership in the Y.M.C.A., membership in the Boy Scouts, and music lessons. The boys' summer plans include going to camps, travel abroad and to parts of the U. S., and work on a farm.

Our most enjoyed subjects are Social Studies, Science, and Mathematics. And to keep up with current events, the boys read the newspapers (when there is no strike) and magazines and watch television newscasts and listen to radio news broadcasts.

We have also published two editions of the Lower School Times. The staff for the last edition included Chris Roberts, editor-in-chief; Larry Binet and Michael Shapiro, news editors; Ronald Beck, sports editor; Kenneth Schaffel, Brian Zack and Ronald Beck, feature editors; Brian Gari, cartoonist; and advertising manager, David Talley.

Most of us plan to prepare ourselves for our future by attending college. There is a variety of proposed professions the boys look forward to entering; among them, science, acting, architecture, law, teaching, and medicine.

McBurney is well-liked by all of the students most of the time. We appreciate the fine understanding of the faculty and their interest in us, and not only in our studies but in our well-being. The well-planned curriculum helps to develop and stimulate our minds as well as our bodies. Two of the top goals are to get on the Headmaster's List and to get above C+ in gym.

FOOTBALL

Co-Captains: Irvin Sherman and Andrew Manassis

This was the year. On October 8, the McBurney Highlanders opened their 1962 football season with a 46 to 6 victory over Saddle River. It was as simple as that. Lederer to Windeler to paydirt and the season was on.

The long days of practice, practice, and more practice paid greater dividends in the games to come. Fine coaching by Mr. Sprau had welded the talents of Lederer, Sherman, Manassis, Smith, and Windeler into an unstoppable offense which was backed up by an equally determined and well-rounded defense led by Niarakis, Zacheo, and Novack.

On October 11, the Green and White faced last year's champions, Montclair. The final score was McBurney 47, Montclair 14. Hard-running backs and sure-fingered ends such as Manassis, Eisenson, Ross, Windeler, and Smith all added points to the Highlanders' score.

The game against Croydon Hall, played on Field Day, was the Green and White's closest encounter of the year. The final score was 27 to 22, but had it not been for a diving tackle made by Bob Lederer in the closing moments of the game, the decision might have been reversed.

The remaining games proved to be mere repeats with McBurney trouncing her rivals by scores of 40-19, 47-3, and 35-12.

At the conclusion of the season, the McBurney football team had a spotless record of 6-0-0 and the M.A.A. P.S. six-man football title under its belt. It was the first football league championship brought to McBurney in over ten years, and in recognition of this achievement, the team was honored with a banquet at which all-pro halfback Frank Gifford presented each team member with an individual trophy.

McBurney will next year participate in an eleven-man football program, a change long desired and one made possible by this year's fine showing.

This year's soccer team looked with covetous eyes upon the league trophy, but a number of injuries to key players during the stretch drive virtually eliminated the Highlanders in their bid to finish in first place. The team finished the long and injury-riddled year with a 4-3-1 record.

At the beginning of the season, Coach Bria had only seven returning lettermen, but by October 7, he was able to put a strong, though as yet untested team against Staten Island for the first game of the season. Due to careless playing, the Green and White lost this game and also the next one against Woodmere Academy. In the third game, however, the squad found the teamwork so essential for victory, and, aided by a goal kicked from mid-field by halfback Paul Jacobs, defeated Barnard 2-1. The Highlanders, paced by Larry Jacobs' four goals, then defeated Collegiate 4-2. In the next two games, goalie Morrison turned in shut-outs against Columbia Grammar (3-0) and Loyola (2-0). At this point in the season, the team's record was 4-2, and they were still in contention. Then, in a game against Fieldston, the Green and White's luck changed for the worse. With the score tied 1-1, the ball was down at the McBurney end of the field. During a scramble in front of the McBurney goal, fullbacks Gershen and Heiferman were injured, the latter having to leave the game. When halfback Paul Jacobs was later hurt, the Highlanders' defense collapsed, and Fieldston was able to score twice more. The last game of the season was against Locust Valley. A number of reserves had to be used, and McBurney was able to gain a 1-1 tie.

Larry Jacobs led the team in scoring for the second year in a row, booting a total of ten goals. Greenberg and Cowen each had two, and Paul Jacobs one. The defense was led by Phil Ross, center halfback and captain of the team, Steve Heiferman, Jeff Gershen, and Paul Jacobs. Returning next year will be a number of undergraduate lettermen, including goalie Morrison, and offensive leaders Cowen, Fishel, and Eaton.

With these experienced players, McBurney should next year have an excellent chance to finish at the top of the league.

If the sun never set on the British Empire, it very seldom had an opportunity to shine on any of the McBurney swimmers, who were at practice before sunup and seldom out of practice before sundown. If you were to walk down West 63rd Street at 7 A.M. during the winter, you would probably see a McBurney swimmer staggering to practice. Or you would find him fast asleep on the staircase waiting for coach Sprau to arrive. However, it was these early practices that helped McBurney to achieve a 7-2 dual meet record and the league trophy this year.

There was general overall strength in the 1963 team led by swimmers Coplan, Suk, Paris and Fontana and by divers Slocomb and Sprinz. In addition Coach Numma had solved last year's problem—the lack of depth—and the team took numerous seconds and thirds. Especially strong was the relay combination of Suk, Moran, Brandon and anchor man Richard Handler. In individual events Brantley took first with breast and back stroke in several meets; Chester Lawrence won a first in the 400 yard freestyle in the Fieldston meet; and Abernethy, Megaw and Landis provided strength in the various medley events.

Bill Suk and Joe Coplan won practically all their races again this year. Suk won many distance races in the freestyle and took two thirds in the 100 and 200 yard events at Westchester. Owen Paris, an All American last year in the breast stroke, set a new National Prep School record against C.G.S. and went on to set a new WCPPS record. The team should be in good shape next fall with the loss of only three of its members.

Winning was the vogue for the Highlanders in 1963, and winning is the byword for Mr. Scudder's fabulous five. In league play the team suffered but two losses, which in the light of its seventeen victories seem almost negligible; and at the season's end, McBurney occupied the number one position in league competition.

How did a team from which not much was expected at the start of the season, achieve such a standing? If a person were to answer the question in a single word, that word would be "teamwork." If two words were called for they would be "teamwork" and high scorer "Dennis Apfel." But if you wish to be as flamboyant as that famous historian and coach Mr. Scudder, then a sentence would have to be constructed containing the following essentials: teamwork, skill, D. Apfel, the ballhawkers, defense, L. Nuzback, incentive or fight, Carey Stevens, and superb coaching.

Actually, the Highlander victories can be attributed to ten players who made up two teams. The first team, consisting of Nuzback, Gartner, Jacobs, Windeler, and Pounder, provided height and good all-round playing; while the other team, the ballhawkers, served to frustrate and tire out opponents. This they did by double and triple-teaming every man. So fast did the ballhawkers move that opponents often were caught looking the other way while Ross or Greenberg, or Stevens or Apfel, calmly looped the ball through the net.

It is perhaps disturbing to see two defeats mar- ring an almost perfect season, but at least it may be said that the Highlanders made their opponents fight for their victories down to the last second. Our first defeat was suffered at the hands of Dwight, whose superiority in height proved to be the decisive factor. Two games later we lost to Barnard. Perhaps if McBurney had met Barnard at the end of the season instead of just two games after the encounter with Dwight, the Highlanders would have beaten them as they had earlier in the season.

If any game deserves to be called crucial, the Woodmere invasion on February 15th deserves that honor. The teams came into battle with identical 9-and-1 league records and buses had transported about half of Woodmere's student body to the fray. In addition, we had just been beaten by Barnard and perhaps had lost our edge.

After the opening minutes, however, it became quite obvious that this was to be McBurney's day. Surprise starters, Stevens and Kenny Apfel, were scoring and the shift to the 1-2-2 zone was keeping Woodmere outside most of the time. By half-time we had built up a 30-18 margin. This margin was maintained throughout the third period and then, as Woodmere pressed in the closing minutes, Nuzback got free under the basket for four straight lay-ups which sewed up the verdict, 63-45. Nuzback, with 18, led the scorers and dominated the defensive boards. Dennis Apfel scored 16, the guards added 18 between them, and Pounder and Windeler, sharing the center position, contributed 10 together and rebounded with greater effect as the game progressed.

We still had three league games to go but the biggest obstacle to the championship had been overcome.

McBurney's track team has shown steady improvement over the last three years. In 1961 the team lost four meets and took none; in 1962 it broke even with two wins and two losses; in 1963, with the nucleus of the 1962 team intact, the percentages should continue to rise.

The relay team retains the greatest strength with the loss only of Rutenberg from the 1962 combination of Coplan, Rutenberg, Grossweiner, and Correa which defeated Barnard, Loyola, and Collegiate to take the small schools division of the Fieldston relays.

In individual events the team's strength remains intact with Roberts the leading entry in the 220, Smith in the 880, Milne in the mile, Abernethy in the high jump events and Windeler in shot put.

The meets for the 1963 season are as follows:

April 23	Barnard
April 26	Tri-Meet at Fieldston
April 29	Locust Valley
May 3	St. Hughes
May 6	Loyola
May 21	Fieldston Relays

BASEBALL

Mr. Scudder, Dennis Apfel, Steve Heiferman, Irv Sherman, Michael Morer, Carey Stevens, Paul Stark, William Niarakis, Kenneth Apfel.

The baseball squad has a history of much success. In the last few years things haven't gone too well, but this year Coach Scudder is optimistic about the nine-game season.

With practically all of last year's team returning, Mr. Scudder is assured an experienced starting lineup. The infield will consist of Greenberg, K. Apfel, and Niarakis, with first base open. Strong outfield prospects are Heiferman, Kalina, Stark, Sherman, and Baron. Behind the plate will be Morrison, Morer, or Stevens.

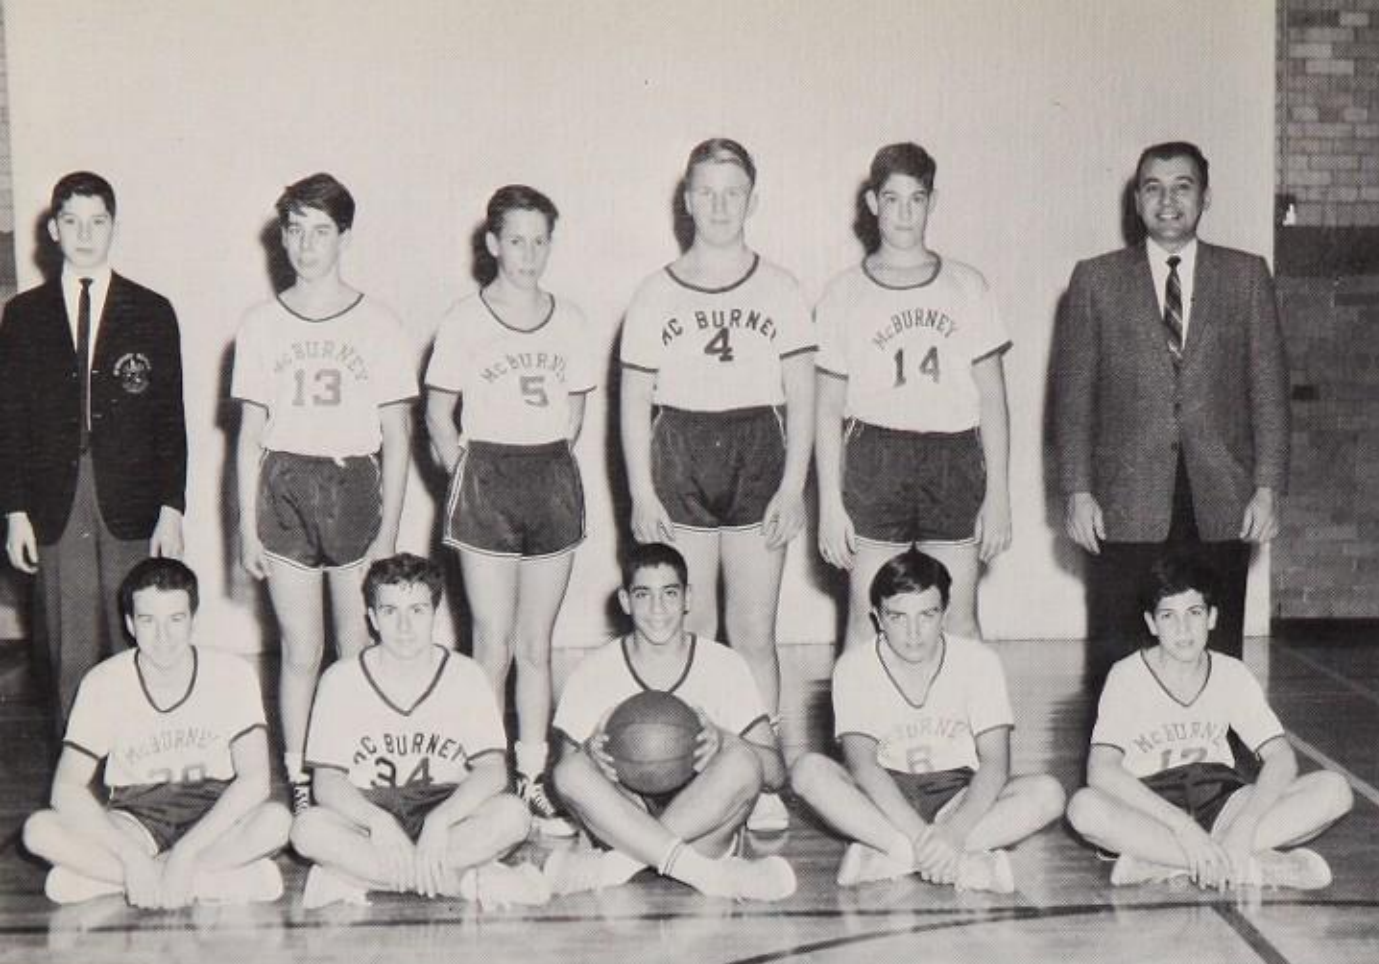

Mr. Scudder is, however, concerned about the pitching. Smith and D. Apfel are promising, with Stark being a good prospect. However, all of these being southpaws, a right-hander is needed.

First base also presents a minor problem, and remains open. Smith and D. Apfel may have to alternate between the mound and first base if a good first baseman is not found.

"We should hit pretty well," says Coach Scudder. "D. Apfel should be the most consistent, while Niarakis will be useful with his long-ball hitting."

Where spirit is concerned, most of the team is young and not overconfident. The outfielders especially won't be relaxing because of the intense competition for starting spots.

Mr. Scudder has hopes for the future, too. A good part of this year's team won't graduate for two years, and from what he has seen of the freshmen, Mr. Scudder is confident of a winning team for the next few years.

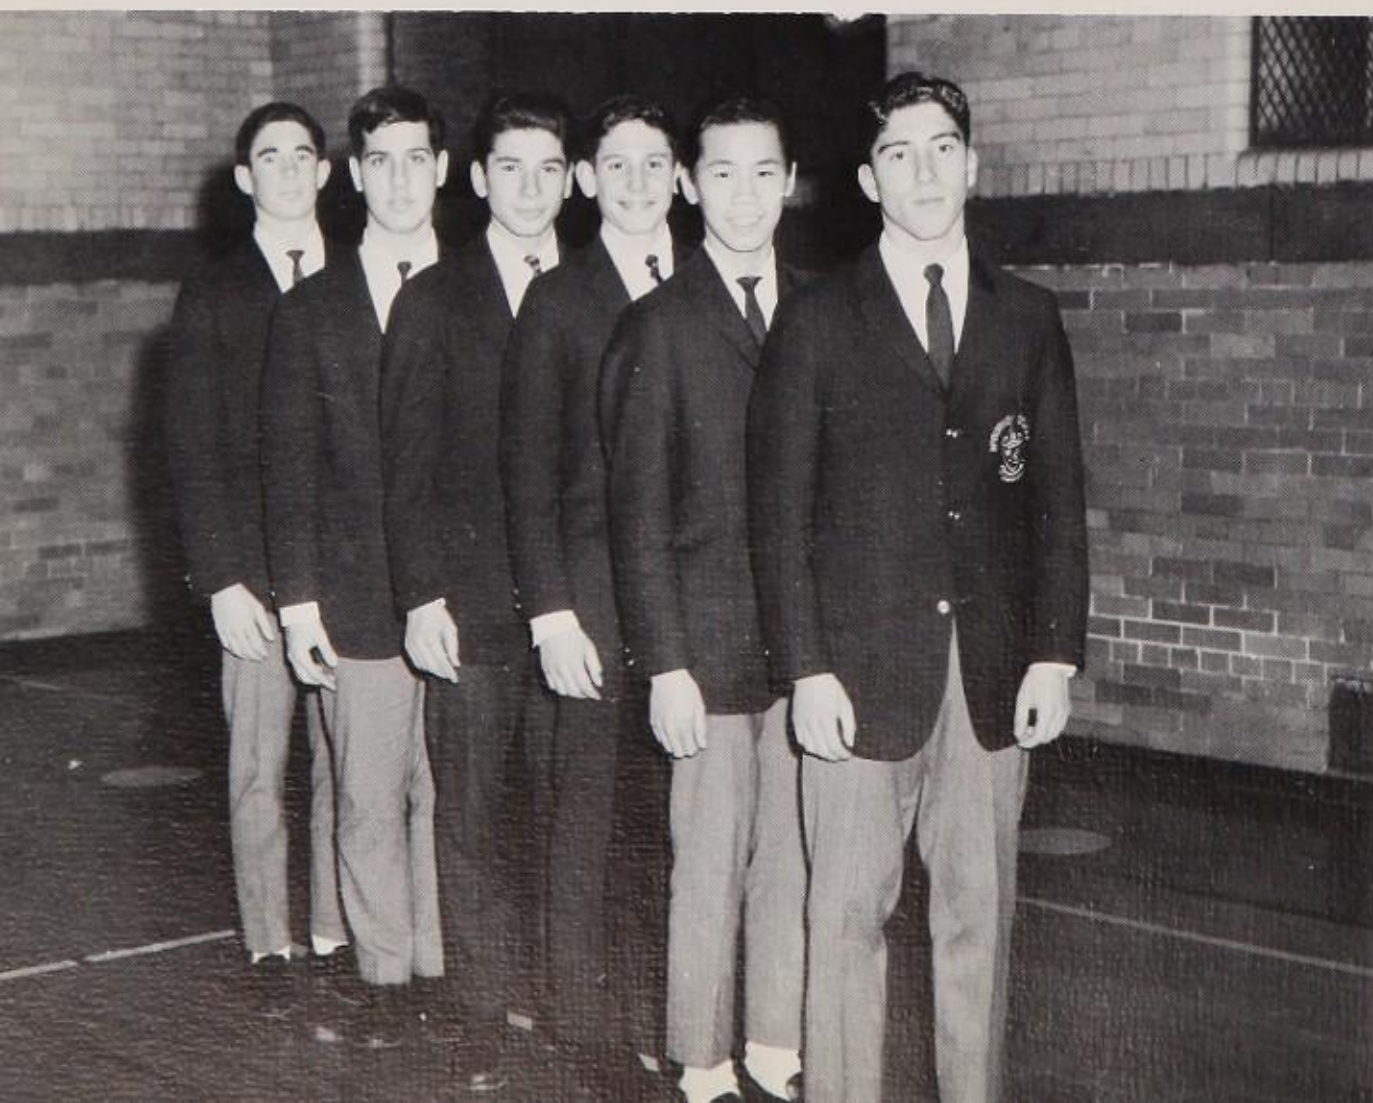

The Freshman Basketball Team finished the season with a 6-6 record, not a bad showing considering that the team lacked height as compared to most of its opposition. Duffy and Jaye were the high scorers, though Cohen, Sharison, and Glucksman also played a steady game throughout the season. The best game, and the one in which the team reached its peak, was against Franklin, when the Freshmen, who were behind eight points at half-time, moved ahead to win by twenty points.

BOWLING

Greg Baron, John Diopoulos, Kenneth Breslauer, Jonathan Weber, Arthur Lai, Steven Mitherz.

McBurney's bowling team was slow in getting organized this year and lost its first two meets to Delehanty and Colby respectively. However, before the third meet, the team, under the supervision of Mr. W. J. Lawrence, was able to offer a strong front to their opponents and won three out of its next four meets. The team overwhelmed Loyola and Lynbrook, but then suffered a tough defeat at the hands of Barnard. The setback was rectified, though, as the McBurney men ousted Barnard by twenty-nine pins to take the Metropolitan League Championship in the final playoff of the season.

FENCING

Bernard Tisserand, Mr. Niederkirchen,
Robert Kaye, Neal Young.

The fencing team had held only one meet by the time we went to press, and that against Riverdale, one of the strongest groups in the association. Robert Kaye showed the greatest strength in this meet, winning five out of seven bouts. There are two more meets to follow, and the prospects are fair for a good season.

TENNIS

Ronald Ehrmann, Rodney Gruenfelder,
Bruce Wasserstein, Sam Ross, Daniel Blumenau.

Although great things were expected of the tennis team last year, mainly because Larry Palitz was the A.A.P.S. singles champion, nobody seemed to win consistently. However, all six losses suffered by the team were by the very close score of 3-2. Larry played his usual brilliant game, but he missed the last three games of the season because of illness. Bob Leuffen, who played second singles, was hampered by a severe knee injury sustained when he was younger, and was only partially effective last year. What with all the injuries to the stars, Sam Ross, Danny Blumenau, Rodney Gruenfelder, and Bruce Wasserstein were shifted around constantly. However this season, with a year of hard play under their belts, the team feels ready for a mighty surge that will prove that last year was just a fluke.

GOLF

Paul Jacobs, Richard Amendola, Lance Garcy, Joseph Seton, Larry Jacobs, Bill Wolff, Mr. Liggett.

By the middle of April the skiers in Van Cortlandt Park will give way to green grass and golfers, with McBurney's team leading the way. The outlook this year is very good. Though two of last year's lettermen were lost through graduation and transfers, the underclassmen are back, one year older, much more experienced, and very enthusiastic. The combination of some of the old standbys and several new team members should make the squad a stiff opponent both in dual meets and in the Westchester County Tournament.

Last year's record of four wins and two losses was good, but the team looks forward to some improvement in the coming meets.

Organized by Dr. Quinn just last year, the Cheerleaders have become an important part of the McBurney scene not only at athletic events but also during assemblies. This year there has been a greater turnout at all the games and meets and undoubtedly the formation of the Cheerleading Squad has done much to contribute to this improvement. Fred Roberts is this year's captain.

As the largest and most active of McBurney's extra-curricular groups, the Glee Club is also McBurney's most rigorous. Composed of eighty boys from the upper and lower schools, it is always busy from 12:15 to 1:15 rehearsing for the many performances on its agenda. This winter the Glee Club started its "season" in early November by singing for a Kiwanis Club luncheon at which Governor Rockefeller spoke. From there the Glee Club continued on its hectic schedule which included performances at Penn Station, the Astor Hotel, various hospitals and banks, the East Side Airlines Terminal, and the Port Authority Terminal and which culminated in a radio broadcast from Philharmonic Hall on December 17th, two days after the traditional Christmas concert and play at McBurney.

A month of grace was allowed during January for recuperation and study for Mid-terms. However, in February the Glee Club set about gathering up another head of steam in preparation for the annual spring musical which this year was "The Three Penny Opera," produced with the cooperation of Hunter College High School. Since not all the Glee Club members are engaged in preparation for the musical, the Glee Club concurrently also prepared for assorted monthly engagements at other schools, monthly assemblies, the Inter-Faith Festival, and Graduation.

It is only on June 11, after Graduation, that the activities of the Glee Club come to an end, and so too the traumatic life of Donald W. Rock, its director, after which he can rest—in preparation for next year's vigorous season.

DRAMA

Last year the Dramatics Society's step forward was the founding within itself of a special group for dramatic study, the Troupers; and out of that group's efforts came this year's expansion of the program of drama at McBurney. In October, the Troupers, under the guidance of Dr. Quinn, decided to put on three one-act plays, to be produced and directed by students. The student directors, Alan Shevlo and Andrew Grunebaum, turned out three fine productions—From Paradise to Butte, Moonset, and The Rising of the Moon. Especially memorable were Jerold Love as a guitar-toting dude in the first play and Alan Shevlo as the eloquent rebel in The Rising of the Moon.

In December the Drama Club put on its annual Christmas play. This year it was an affecting rendition of Charles Dickens' A Christmas Carol. Scrooge and Tiny Tim were brought to life again by Mr. Scudder and Jonathan Surgal as the McBurney thespians, supplemented by the acting talents of Miss Berkeley and Messrs Scudder, Hardenbergh and Schumann, proved that it is never too late to reform.

This year's senior play was Sherlock Holmes, a William Gillette adaptation of the stories of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle. This was probably the most elaborately mounted production McBurney has seen. No effort was spared to capture the appearance and spirit of the 1890's. The entire show was rehearsed for four months, and the final result was a tribute to the performers and the whole Dramatics Society.

This year the McBurneian built on the innovations that last year won it a first place rating in the Columbia Scholastic Press Association contest. Under the guidance of faculty advisor George Peterson and the leadership of Editor-in-Chief Gordon Joseloff, the staff produced many excellent and varied issues.

Layout changes made the paper more attractive and easier to read; and new features included book, play, and movie reviews, and profiles of school academic and athletic leaders. In addition, two new columns were added, "Letters to the Editor" and "Alumni Notes." The first attracted comment on everything from insurrections within the Student Council to beards for students, while "Alumni Notes" provided news of and for recent graduates.

The old columns were not forgotten. "The Bench Warmer," and "Lower School News," appeared regularly and gave readers a full coverage of happenings on the playing fields and on the third floor, while "The Ivory Tower" took its usual humorous look at the news behind the news. "College Bound," always an important aid to juniors and seniors, this year turned its focus on the many good small colleges and made available to students information of increasing importance to them.

To supplement the broad area covered by monthly columns, feature articles ran the gamut from Jaro's to Lincoln Center with stops along the way for Field Day, the dances, and the various dramatic and musical productions of the year.

PANORAMA

"Words," said Johnson, "are but the signs of ideas." Panorama, McBurney's literary publication, has taken Dr. Johnson as its guide this year and is attempting to present to the student body a collection of poems, essays, and stories vital both in the signs and in the ideas behind them. The editorial staff believes that although a young person may lack maturity in his writing, he seldom lacks vitality and may often see more and learn more of life than an adult. This year Panorama leans heavily on poetry and essays, two of the most immediate means of self-expression; and the goal this year, as in the past, is to raise the standard of writing at McBurney.

JOURNALIST

There was new life in the Journalist this year with more spirited reporting, commenting, and interpreting of goings-in around McBurney. The new look and the new vitality was largely the result of the efforts of Editor-in-Chief Mike Bogen, with important aid from Assistant Editor Alan Shevlo and helpful faculty advice given by Mr. James Fisher-Northrop.

The first issue marked a departure from some of the partisan editorializing of last year, but it was not until the second issue that the paper's new policy of a livelier coverage of events of the week presented in clear, simple, and dynamic language became apparent. Especially memorable were the December issues on the Student Council debates, but a dull lead in any issue was a rarity. The year's news successes have paved the way for an expanding Journalist, which has already burgeoned from two to six pages an issue and is now supplementing its lead features with photographs.

OFFICE BOYS

The office boys perform many tasks during the day. They collect attendance reports in the morning and afternoon, show visitors around all day, and are harbingers of news both good and bad.

The Safety Squad under the capable direction of Jerold Love sees to it that McBurney boys receive the maximum protection from fire, accident, and various other dangers to life and limb.

SAFETY SQUAD

A McBURNEY BALLAD

A bunch of the boys were whooping it up in the old Jaro saloon;
At the piano a fellow named Kornicker was hitting out a jag-time tune;
At the back of the bar in a solo game sat dangerous Dan Millan;
And watching his luck was his partner, the guy known as Morgenstan.
When out of the night, which was fifty below, and into the din and glare,
There stumbled a student fresh from the halls, dog-dirty and loaded for bear.
He looked like a man who'd come straight from the gym with scarcely the strength of a mouse,
Yet he tilted a poke of dust on the bar, and he called for drinks on the house.
There was none who could place the stranger's face, though we searched our minds for a clue;
But we drank his health, and the last to drink were Cantor, Cohen, and Chu.
There's men, so they tell, can cast a spell with only the glance of an eye;
Such was he and he looked to me like a man who lived but to die.
With a face most hair and the weary stare of a Ross when day is done,
He watered the green stuff in his glass, and the drops fell one by one.
Baron got to figuring who he was and wondered what he'd say;
Whittle turned his head to watch the stranger, as did Lantzky, Bard, and Kaye.
His eyes went rubbering round the room, and he seemed in a kind of daze,
Till at last the old piano fell in the way of his wandering gaze.
Friedlander was having himself a few; there was no one now on the stool,
So the stranger stumbled across the room and sat down with a look that was cruel.
In a blazer blue that was glazed with dirt he sat, and Bleeth saw him sway;
Then he struck the keys with his talon hands, and my God but that man could play!
The music rose and near died away, then it burst out again like a whirling fan.
"What's to come?" wondered Becker—and Winkler, Parker, Shuler and Sherman.
Then his lips went in in a kind of grin and he spoke in a voice that overawed;
"Boys," said he, "you don't know me; and none of you care by Gawd!"
Suk heard him state that his words were straight and that he'd bet his poke they were true.
And Rones heard him shrill, "I've come here to kill; and Gershen—the Fates say it's you!"
Wood and Love ducked their heads, the lights went dead, and two guns blazed in the dark,
Manassis grew faint, and when the lights went up, on the floor two men lay stiff and Stark.
There's quiet now and the cops are through, but the legend continues to grow
Of the night the boys were whooping it up in weather fifty below.
